

Destiny – Data Protection Officer

Minimise

About the role...

A Data Protection Officer (DPO) at Dstny is characterized by a strong combination of technical knowledge, legal expertise and communication skills. This professional has a proven track record in guiding international organizations in implementing and complying with privacy legislation such as GDPR/AVG.

Core competencies:

- Thorough knowledge of privacy legislation: Deep knowledge of GDPR and relevant national legislation, with the ability to translate this into practical advice and policies within various sectors.
- Advice & implementation: Experience in setting up and maintaining privacy management systems, conducting data protection impact assessments (DPIAs), and advising management and employees.
- Stakeholder management: Strong in maintaining relationships at all levels within the organization, from operational to strategic, and acting as a bridge between IT, legal, and business.
- Training & awareness: Actively involved in providing training, workshops, and awareness sessions on privacy and data protection.
- Project management: Skilled in leading privacy projects, coordinating audits, and following up on improvement processes.
- Communicative & analytical: Excellent written and oral communication, combined with analytical skills to clearly unravel and solve complex privacy issues.

What are we looking for...

Background & Experience:

- Bachelor's or master's degree in law, IT, or a relevant field.
- Certification as a DPO or proven experience in a similar role.
- 3+ years experience in guiding international organizations in implementing and complying with privacy legislation.
- Affinity with technology, digitization, and changing regulations.
- For this role, we expect excellent command of English while proficiency in Dutch and/or French are a plus.
- Presence of at least 3x/week in Zaventem is required.

Personality:

- Integrity – Honest and ethical, always doing the right thing.
- Detail-Oriented – Careful and precise with data and documentation.
- Analytical – Thinks critically and solves complex problems.
- Communicative – Explains legal and technical issues clearly.
- Independent – Makes unbiased decisions, even under pressure.

- Resilient – Stays calm and composed in challenging situations.
- Curious – Eager to learn and stay
